

Don't ask one AI. Ask the whole roundtable.

A linear rollout for testing whether Roundtable can become understand, share, and return to — with clear gates before

Core product idea

People do not just need one fast answer. They need a multi-level response: several expert agents with specific perspectives debating the same question, then giving a useful next step.

Strongest first topic

Health, because TVBS / 健康2.0 is a real partner channel and health questions naturally need multiple expert perspectives.

Health first

Food

Tech

Sport

Finance

Rollout timeline

Dates are less important than sequence. Each step earns the right to move to the next one.

1. Build the Health proof

HEALTH FIRST

Use TVBS / 健康2.0 as the first real partner channel. Show a health question becoming a multi-agent expert debate: family care, nutrition, sleep, rehab, and medical caution.

Main thing to prove

People understand Roundtable fast.

Product moment

One question becomes a lively expert debate.

Must measure

First useful Roundtable completed.

★ Gate 1: Is the first experience working?

GO / SLOW DOWN

Before wider launch, check if the basic loop is real: users complete a useful Roundtable, share tracking is ready, and people can explain the product after seeing it.

Pass if

Users finish a first useful Roundtable.

Pass if

Sharing clicks and shared-link opens are recorded.

If weak

Fix the product or explanation before sending more traffic.

2. Open beta, not full launch

LEARN IN PUBLIC

Let more people try it, but do not pretend the product is fully proven. The public story stays simple: Generative Debate around health, with secondary examples in food, tech, sport, and finance.

Health

Main story. Partner proof through TVBS / 健康2.0.

Food

Cuisine taste debates, restaurant choice, nutrition angles.

Tech

Tool comparisons, build decisions, operator debates.

Sport

Tennis expert, coach, injury doctor, stats analyst.

Finance

Saving, spending, risk education. Not financial advice.

3. Watch the social loop

SHARING MATTERS

Roundtable should not only be used; it should be shared. A shared link should open the same topic and expert setup so the next person can start their own session.

Share rate

Do users send links or recaps?

Shared link conversion

Do receivers start a session?

Time in session

Do users stay with the debate?

★ Gate 2: Is this product pulling people back?

FULL LAUNCH DECISION

Only move to a bigger launch if users share it, receivers open links, people return, and the Health experience feels real — not just a cool demo.

Pass if

Repeat use is real.

Pass if

Sharing creates new sessions.

If mixed

Stay in beta and fix the weak part.

4. Choose the second topic from data

NOT OPINION

Food, tech, sport, and finance all get small tests. The next topic should be whichever one wins on sharing, time in session, and repeat use.

Food wins if

People share taste debates.

Sport wins if

Fans stay for expert debate.

Finance wins if

People return for cautious education.

★ Gate 3: Can this become a paid partner test?

PARTNER TEST

A paid partner test means a short 30- or 60-day test with a partner, like TVBS using Roundtable inside Health 2.0 with real users. Both sides agree what success means before it starts.

Pass if

A partner sees real user value.

Pass if

The team can support the test.

If not

Return to product and sharing loop.

★ Gate 4: Is it ready to scale?

SCALE OR HOLD

Only expand when the product has repeat use, a working share loop, and partner proof. If the core loop is weak, adding more topics or markets only hides the problem.

Scale if

Users come back and share.

Scale if

Partner tests can become real rollouts.

Hold if

People try once but do not return.

Funnel graph

The product “hits” only if people move through the whole loop: understand, use, share, bring someone else in, and come back.

People see the hook “Don’t ask one AI. Ask the whole roundtable.”

They start a Roundtable choose topic + expert setup

They reach a useful result expert debate + recap / next step

They share it same topic + expert setup link

Someone opens + starts new session from sha. link

Hook clarity Can someone explain Roundtable after a few seconds?

First useful Roundtable Did the user complete one real session?

Time in session How long they stay in the debate, not counting loading.

Share rate Do users send the Roundtable link or recap?

Shared link conversion Does the receiver start their own session?

Repeat use

Do users come back without being pushed?

Assets we need to make

These are the actual things the team needs before launch. Dates are simple checkpoints, not sacred.

Now → before open beta

30-second trailer / tutorial. Show one question turning into a panel of AI experts, then a useful recap. It must explain Roundtable immediately.

Now → before open beta

Questions-and-answers page. Explain what Roundtable is, who it is for, whether it is medical advice, and how sharing works.

Now → before open beta

One-page partner explanation. For TVBS / 健康2.0: what Roundtable is, how it appears inside their app, why Health is first, and what the test is trying to prove.

Now → before open beta

Terms of service + health disclaimer. Make clear this is informational and not a replacement for a doctor.

Before Gate 1

Basic tracking. Record first useful Roundtable completed, share clicks, shared-link opens, and new sessions started from shared links.

During open beta

Four secondary topic demos. Food, tech, sport, and finance examples using the same Roundtable format.

Before Gate 2

Shareable recap/link design. The shared link should open the same topic and expert setup for the next person.

Before paid partner test

Partner test brief. A short document saying what TVBS-style partners are testing, what success means, and what happens after 30 or 60 days.

Gate logic

At each gate, mixed signal means slow down and fix. Do not force a full launch because the calendar says so.

Gate 1

Can people finish their first useful Roundtable and understand what it is?

Gate 2

Do they share, do receivers start sessions, and do users come back?

Gate 3

Can a partner run a paid test with real users and clear success rules?

Gate 4

Is the loop strong enough to expand topics, partners, or markets?
